Some of the various modern methods of English language teaching include:

1. Communicative Language Teaching: Focuses on real-life communication and interaction, emphasizing the use of language in authentic contexts.
2. Task-Based Language Teaching: Involves pupils completing tasks that require them to use English in meaningful ways, promoting language learning through practical application.
3. Content-Based Instruction: Integrates language learning with subject content, allowing pupils to learn English while studying other academic subjects.
4. Technology-Enhanced Language Learning: Utilizes digital tools and resources to enhance language learning, such as online platforms, apps, and multimedia content.
5. Flipped Classroom Approach: Involves students learning new language concepts independently outside of class and using class time for interactive activities and practice.
6. Project-Based Learning: Engages students in collaborative projects that require them to use English to solve real-world problems or create meaningful products.
7. Game-Based Learning: Incorporates game elements and principles into language learning activities to make the process more engaging and interactive.
8. Differentiated Instruction: Tailors teaching methods and materials to meet the diverse learning needs and preferences of individual students.

These modern methods of English language teaching aim to create dynamic, student-centered learning environments that promote active engagement, meaningful interaction, and effective language acquisition.

English language teaching has evolved dramatically, offering a diverse range of methods to cater to different learning styles and needs. Here's an overview of some prominent methods:

1. Grammar-Translation Method:

Focus: Explicit grammar instruction and translation exercises.

Strengths: Develops grammatical accuracy and vocabulary knowledge.

Weaknesses: Limited focus on communication and fluency.

2. Direct Method:

Focus: Immersion in the target language, excluding the use of the native language.

Strengths: Promotes natural language acquisition and fluency.

Weaknesses: Challenging for beginners and complex grammar concepts.

3. Audio-Lingual Method:

Focus: Repetition and drilling of language patterns.

Strengths: Enhances pronunciation and automaticity of language use.

Weaknesses: Can be repetitive and lack communicative context.

4. Communicative Language Teaching:

Focus: Meaningful communication and real-life language use.

Strengths: Develops communicative competence and fluency.

Weaknesses: May not provide sufficient grammar instruction for some learners.

5. Task-Based Language Teaching:

Focus: Completing tasks that require language use for authentic purposes.

Strengths: Enhances problem-solving skills and promotes practical language application.

Weaknesses: Requires careful task design and may not suit all learning styles.

6. Total Physical Response:

Focus: Physical actions and movement to acquire language.

Strengths: Engaging and effective for kinesthetic learners.

Weaknesses: Limited application for abstract concepts and advanced language skills.

7. The Silent Way:

Focus: Learner autonomy and self-discovery.

Strengths: Encourages active learning and problem-solving.

Weaknesses: Requires experienced teachers and may not provide enough structure for some learners.

8. Suggestopedia:

Focus: Relaxed and comfortable learning environment with music and visualization.

Strengths: Reduces anxiety and promotes subconscious learning.

Weaknesses: Limited empirical evidence and may not suit all personalities.

9. Dogme Language Teaching:

Focus: Conversation-driven learning with minimal materials or pre-planning.

Strengths: Promotes spontaneity and authentic interaction.

Weaknesses: Requires highly skilled teachers and may lack structure for some learners.

Modern approaches often integrate elements from various methods to create a balanced and effective learning experience. The choice of method depends on the learner's needs, learning style, and the specific goals of the language program.

It is necessary to introduce innovations in the education system, for example, in the education of schoolchildren, the rooms should be filled with modern equipment, each student should have a separate desk and chair. The student can behave freely in the class, the presence of computers and newly designed blackboards in the rooms will increase his interest in studying and his desire to study.

In conclusion, the introduction of a new system and a new method will strengthen children's reading activities
