Abstract: This article describes the methods of teaching foreign languages to the primary class, as well as methodical instructions, the way to work with students, to explain the educational process to them in a simple and smooth way instructions have been given.

Key words: Methodology, analysis, observational approach, skill, competence, pedagogical tact, effect, result, methodological approaches

We know that everything begins in its own way and that they have a clear foundation. Nowadays, we can meet many young people who are learning English as a second language. They may mispronounce or forget what they are learning due to lack of memory skills and abilities, which affects them negatively. We can cover many aspects of teaching English to new language learners and we will give you step-by-step information about them in the following order, not only by providing information on this topic, but also with the help of examples on this topic. We will try to explain and explain. Information about correcting the errors and shortcomings of students and teachers in the teaching of English in schools, kindergartens and other educational institutions. we will try to pass. Most importantly, according to the topic of our article, we will explain the reasons and our methodical methods for correcting the difficulties and shortcomings of new learners in learning foreign languages. We provide examples and explanatory solutions to the difficulties we need to solve.

1. Difficulties in using the language: when learning the language, students who are just starting to learn English do not yet understand English and may face difficulties in using the language. This requires students to get acquainted with new changes, changes and concepts. For this, the pedagogue needs to know how his student's language skills are being formed, to teach in a situation where he compares them with his mother tongue, and which language his student has. if he is facing a difficulty in learning, to do more to overcome it, to know how to choose the right methodological method, to increase the lesson on the skill that is in difficulty, to work without separating it from the rest of the skills and they will have to give them constant explanations.

2. Inability to express their thoughts: Students may have difficulty expressing their thoughts correctly and organized. This requires students to learn and practice expressing their thoughts correctly and concisely. we need to change our methodical method to another effective one, give assignments based on the students' own level of knowledge. Depending on their students, if they have a lot of educated students, they give difficult tasks or prepare materials that are easy for them to explain. Elementary school students definitely lose their desire to learn and avoid such learning processes. This negatively affects important and important processes such as expressing their thoughts and using them freely, speaking. As a solution, we will be able to consider using a game or similar methodical methods where students work in groups and express their thoughts and opinions.

3. How to help students: Language learners may have difficulties in learning and maintaining variables during the learning process. For this, it is necessary to help students to master variables, to express their opinions and to implement other educational methods. We can't adjust it. Because if we students, to be more specific, we cause students to lose their enthusiasm, whether it is English or any other language, especially the young ones who are eager to learn the language. First grade students lose interest in the language rather than the interest in it. In order to prevent this, we should pay attention to the young aspects of our students. If we don't guide the students during their learning period or if we put a group of students in a difficult situation without giving them the opportunity to create their own motivation, it only hurts us and the student. It becomes the reason for refusing to learn. We punish them by various methods even for small mistakes during the exercise or we influence them by any physical and spiritual methods by not participating in the lessons. This is a clear evidence. Instead of ineffective methods like this, we try to eliminate the student's shortcomings, whether it is in writing skills or speaking skills, listening skills are not good, or they cannot concentrate during the lesson. It is important that we explain the shortcomings and mistakes later. Helping students through this method is one of the most convenient and effective processes. One of the main aspects is that we can give explanations to students without losing their enthusiasm and achieve good results. If we extinguish the interest of students through methods that do not suit them, it is in our hands to help them regardless of the lesson we want to teach them for the exam. This will solve not only our education, but also the desire of the student to learn further aspects.

4. Lack of motivation of students in the learning process:

It can be difficult for learners to increase students' enthusiasm and interest in learning English. This requires encouraging students to participate in the learning process with interest and determination to learn. We will be able to help students who are starting to learn a new language by first building their speaking and then writing skills. Give the reading task to us students

5. Presentation of lessons: In elementary grades, students may have difficulty in implementing and mastering practice. It requires students to organize practice and learning processes and learn to work collaboratively with others. 6. Instructional tools and technologies: students may have difficulty using instructional materials. To do this, it is necessary to become familiar with the provision of convenient and effective teaching tools, curricula and teaching guides for students. Due to insufficient methodological knowledge and skills of elementary school students, the above has a great impact on the language learning process. In order to avoid the negative aspects of this, first of all, it is necessary for the pedagogue to work separately with the students in the teacher's class, to evaluate the way of their learning or to what extent their level of knowledge is growing. Every young person learning a foreign language certainly faces certain difficulties and obstacles. English language learners certainly try to do more by learning from their teachers before the assessment and evaluation process of a certain level of foreign language proficiency, and looking at the pre-IELTS process, young applicants they try to rise further. 4 abilities to know their level of language knowledge indicate the knowledge of a certain person, and the improvement of all these comes after a long search of the student and the teacher. In the process of learning a certain language, we will definitely encounter certain language barriers.

-Lack of motivation to study, gradual fading of interest in studying - the main reason for this is definitely the main factor of the lack of a clear goal.

- Inadequate distribution of students' time and improper time management

- Due to lack of confidence in their own knowledge, students may experience a certain excitement or lack of confidence in the examination process. This is the reason why they will not be able to get a good result in the exams.

Some of the most important ways to help language learners include the following.

1. Comprehensible words and phrases: Students may struggle to learn comprehensible words and phrases in English. To do this, you need to memorize new words, grammar rules and expressions related to the language and learn to use them correctly. If we don't help the students to learn new words or help them to explain the same expressions, terms and concepts, we will definitely have some difficulties with the student group and it will not work well for their translation skills and they will not be able to. It also loses its translation skills.

2. Learning Variables: Students' difficulties in using language are present in learning variables. This requires correct use of variables, learning and supporting words related to their spirituality and customs. the dictionary may face a certain level of structural problems, and if we want to teach foreign languages to students like experts, it is certainly appropriate to teach students rules and In addition, it is very important for us to learn that dictionaries do not have a specific meaning, and in some cases we should use them in figurative sense. we are obliged and responsible to help our students in this regard.

3. Support: Supporting students in language use can be difficult. For this, it is necessary to help students express their opinions, use words and phrases correctly, and implement teaching methods. We help them acquire knowledge, skills and abilities, and we raise their passion and interest in learning to a higher level. The more we help our students in practice, the more time we have with them, the more we will achieve good results through our teaching methods, the most important thing is that we can develop an effective teaching method. is important to us, and this is one of the reasons why we have our own teaching methods.

4. Additional languages and dialects: The presence of additional languages and dialects can make it difficult for students to learn a language. It requires students to understand and support additional languages and dialects. To be more precise, the changeability of the language appears. Due to the change, problems in the translation skills or listening comprehension process of our students, such as the dialect and the like, appear. As a result, they become incompetent. can be

5. Difficulties in communication: Students may have difficulties in the process of communication. It requires students to learn how to use language to discuss with others, to ask and answer questions, to express themselves and to assert themselves. so we need to communicate more. If learners can't have their own communication direction, there is a high possibility that they will lose their main reason for learning the language. Because it is a tool and therefore important, we can discuss more with our students and at the beginning of such classes, we can start with small tasks to find out how they are learning from our students and gradually make the tasks more difficult to assess them during the lesson. When going from easy to difficult, students will certainly speak in easy exercises, and in difficult exercises, they will work on their own, and the lesson and teaching process will increase more effectively.

6. Basic aspects of teaching aids and resources and information technology: insufficient teaching aids and resources can cause difficulties in language learning for students. For this, it is necessary to provide students with convenient learning tools, to provide access to information resources, educational programs, and Internet resources. if we help them find them, if we teach our students with the help of technological tools in the course of the lesson, if we use new articles and similar information in the course of the lesson, we will achieve our own results. Because information technology and manuals are the main support, we can create our own effective lesson based on the result of computer technology educational games to make our lesson interesting. if we don't have it, we certainly can't organize the lesson process.
